ABOUT MILLENNIUM FARMS

Millennium Farms has been growing seasonal greens, vegetables and fruit for over 20 years for families, restaurants and institutions. It is a small family farm in the Ridgefield area, north of Vancouver, WA, owned and operated by Michael and Missy Stucky and their family. Michael's family have centuries of growing experience, as he comes from a long line of Mennonite farmers. Notably, his great-grandfather was one of 10 Mennonite farmers to bring the very first hard red winter wheat to the U.S. in 1874, the grain from which most of our bread now is made. Millennium Farms has always used sustainable growing practices, use no chemical sprays or fertilizers, and will never use GMO seed – in fact a majority of what they provide comes from heirloom varieties. They also have operated a nursery for over 23 years, offering many of the same plant starts they use for themselves in the field.
